

A major dance company is putting on a tour about what it's like to be in prison

By: Jacob Shamisian and Kristen Griffen

February 25, 2016

The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater is premiering "Untitled America: First Movement," a performance that explores the impact that prison has on people. Choreographer Kyle Abraham observed the body language of former prisoners, and translated those movements into dance.

Watch Video here: <http://www.businessinsider.com/alvin-ailey-tour-on-prison-impact-2016-2>